Counterfeit U. S. Treasury and National Bank Notes

(Editor's note: This listing was found in Von Bergen's "Rare Coins of America." Mr. Richard Picker typed up the following listing and through the cooperation of John J. Ford it is available for the first time.)

Important Explanation to the Trade — The Government prints all the Paper Money in the country, both Greenbacks and National Bank Notes, on sheets of four bills each, lettered A B C D; some one of these letters is on every bill, and is a fixture on the plates. The counterfeiter makes his plate invariably a single one from some one bill, and never prints but one of the four letters. This leaves the other three letters on the same bank undisturbed, and as every effort to substitute another letter on the National notes has failed, the other three letters of these notes can be taken with impunity; but the letter counterfeited on all notes must be refused by non-experts, as the Redemption Agency retires all the genuine of that letter and thus leaves the field to the counterfeit. This principle is so explicit and comprehensible that without ever seeing a bill, if the letter and denomination be given, its quality can be positively ascertained.

Varieties of The Government of Texas One-Dollar Notes

by John H. Swanson

It has been supposed heretofore that there were two types or varieties of Government of Texas one-dollar notes. These were assigned the numbers 14 and 14-A in the Criswell system, the division being based on the presence or absence of minute stars in the dark field surrounding a rather large star in the upper central portion of the shield.

It would appear, however, that those notes which exhibit a clear field are of two varieties (see illustrations).

The first variety considered herein presents a large star of very regular shape within a uniformly dark field. Apparently this type should continue to bear the Criswell number 14. The upper star-point appears to be directed toward the shoulder of "Liberty."

There is a ring of minute stars, nine in number, surrounding a very irregular large star. The writer has not seen a specimen with minute stars in the field in which the large central star was regular in outline.

Some notes present a very irregular large star within a smooth dark field. Because of a curve in one edge of the upper star-point, the latter appears to be aimed toward the pollicus (thumb) or wrist of "Liberty." The number 14-b is tentatively assigned to notes of this kind. They seem to be approximately as numerous as those of the Criswell 14 type.

Minor Varieties In The Small Size Notes by the Rev. Frank H. Hutchins

It has always puzzled me that while a coin collector almost always seems to start with current coins and only then work back to former issues, note collectors always seem to start with large size notes and seldom even get around to making a collection of the small size notes. I'll grant the large size notes are more artistic. So, however, are the Morgans, Barbers, and Gobrechts among the coins, while ease of acquisition, which is always cited as the reason for the popularity of current coins, should be, it seems to me, as much of a desideratum in the case of small size notes.

There is, of course, a greater uniformity in small size notes than in the large size, but the variations are as interesting, even though they're really only two in number: first, the color of the seal, which varies much but has one variation that is quite pronounced, and secondly, the size or legibility, increased at one time, of the two plate numbers, on the obverse and the reverse. Friedberg notes the change, in 1934, from olive green to dark green seals, but takes no notice of the earlier departure from the dark green to the olive green seals in the 1928B series. This was uniform, and makes for two varieties of each of these notes also. But the much more easily detected change, not subject to the smaller variants of shade that colors always have, is that between the microscopic figures that prevailed in all of the plate numbers till the time that Morgenthau was Secretary of the Treasury and those adopted while he was in office.

Note the difference between a 1934 and 1934A note, for instance. Other than the added letter, nothing differs but the size of the plate number in the lower right-hand corner of the note. The same is true of 1928C twos and 1928D twos, or 1928B red-seal fives and those of 1928C, and it even forms a major difference between the 1935 and 1935A singles. What's of interest is that there's no consistency between the obverse and the reverse plates. The change was made, but never uniformly. Only the invasion notes show uniformity, plate numbers that are legible appearing on the reverse of the 1934 and 1934A notes alike, though "R" and "S" notes also all are legible on both the obverse and the reverse. Otherwise we find both muled and unmuled notes of almost every series. I append a table showing what I've found, and as with large size notes, I should be grateful to whoever can find others and will let me know about them.

MINOR VARIETIES OF THE SMALL SIZE NOTES

I've yet to find a 1928C two, or a 1934 silver five or New York, Chicago, or St. Louis twenty, with a readily legible reverse plate number, a 1934A blue-seal ten or green-seal five with a microscopic reverse plate number, or a 1934D hundred—from New York, anyway—that's either muled or matching; and I haven't yet acquired either a 1934 yellow-seal ten or mules of the 1934B New York five and the 1935 single. Either information or a note for sale or trade of any of them would be welcome.

Just a final note about the recent singles. There's a difference in design between the rotaries and flatbeds that is quite pronounced if anyone is looking for it, on the obverse, and the reverse also. On the obverse, flatbeds have a fairly narrow oval, ending in a bevel, while the rotaries have wider ovals, ending in a point; and on the reverse, "ONE" is larger on the rotaries, its shadow reaching almost to the blossoms in the lower right-hand corner, while the flat-beds—even those with mottoes—have it distant from the blossoms. It is not the same design on either side, and even more dissimilar than many that are classified as being different designs. The 1935's are also readily distinguishable from the ones from 1935A on, by having "SERIES 1935" in two positions, in the corners of the note, instead of having it in only one, as on the later notes, and that far nearer to the portrait than the corner.

Other changes have been made, of course, without a change of series number. There's the White House with the balcony they changed to on the twenties in the 1934C series, and the narrow border they adopted for the singles in the 1935D series; and the 1935G singles have at last come out with mottoes. Why should interest in small size notes be limited to "error" notes, initial-final letter combinations, and the like, when such variety exists among the notes themselves?

A Bibliography of Listings of Obsolete Notes by Fred R. Marckhoff

The following bibliography of all known Descriptive and Summary Listings of U. S. Obsolete Notes is presented for the first time, both as a source of information of what has been done in the past on each State, and also as a guide of what can and should be done in the future in this field of numismatics.

By way of explanation, there are two general types of listings—descriptive and summary. The former, of course, is much the better kind inasmuch as it is far more complete. It usually gives a word description of all important features of each note—vignettes, overprints, colors used, die counters, engraver's imprint, identity of portraits used in detail, etc.

A summary listing merely states the denomination, name of issuer, city and State, and sometimes the date of issue and engraver's name. Such a list leaves much of the data concerning a note untold.

Included in this work are books and articles which cover only a phase of a State's issuance, yet cover it so thoroughly, they must be included as a reference work in connection with a bibliography such as this one. This latitude was extended to material containing a sufficient number of note illustrations or written text describing notes in detail.

The reader will note one of four notations in parentheses after each reference work, (D) for Descriptive Listing, (S) for Summary Listing, (I.A.) for illustrated article and (I.B.) for illustrated book. Very occasionally there is a combination of these symbols, as the text happens to dictate.

It should be understood that this bibliography does not include articles or books which generalize on the subject of obsolete notes, but which do not go into the specifics of note issuances or their illustrations, to any extent.

Reference works not yet in printed forms are given in capital letters to indicate those which are PRESENTLY being actively worked upon, whether actual printing is five years or five days away.

It will take only a glance to see that very little or nothing has been done on many of the States notes since the Wismer and Muscalus works of the 1920's to 1940's. Both an opportunity and a challenge exist for the obsolete note collector to carry this work forward. Anyone beginning such an assignment should advise the S.P.M.C. officers of their intentions, so that our organization may be used as clearing house for all such efforts with the resulting benefits to researcher and collector alike.

If the financial obstacles in connection with the printing of these works can ever be overcome, their numbers would no doubt increase tenfold.

Any omission to this bibliography is purely unintentional.

MONEY OF THE AMERICAN WEST, by John J. Ford, Jr.

A new work on Virginia notes by C. J. Affleck, a more detailed work on Georgia by Robert W. Cornely and Claud Murphy, Jr., and continuations of the Criswell Currency Series on various States have also been reported, and some progress has been made on all of them.

Early Bank Note Registers, notably those of Hodges and Gwynne & Day contained periodical descriptive lists of banknotes also. These were not of numismatic origin, however, and their data was incorporated in Wismer's works in The Numismatist.

TWO SCARCE JULIAN-VINSON UNCUT SHEETS!

12 Beautiful Red Seal Legal Tender Notes

All notes with Julian-Vinson signatures are scarce—in sheet form especially so. These bright red seals make a striking exhibit.

F1390 $2.00 Series 1928E. Priced at $450.00

I believe this sheet is worth $750.00 minimum. It would be difficult to estimate its value a year or two from now.

F1397 $5.00 Series 1928D. Priced at $595.00

This sheet of 12 is offered at slightly over the value of 12 single notes. Very few $5.00 uncut sheets exist in any series.

EMERGENCY SERIES—TWO UNCUT SHEETS OF 12

All single notes in this World War II Emergency Series have steadily increased in demand and value. Uncut sheets are rarely seen.

F2126 $1.00 1935A Silver Certificate, Brown Seal, Surcharged Hawaii.

A beautiful exhibit piece you will be proud to own. Price $495.00.

F2127 $1.00 1935A Silver Certificate, Yellow Seal

Few collectors have seen this issue in sheet form. Price $695.00.
